PER CURIAM

Frederick Ray filed this civil rights action pro se pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, alleging due process violations.<sup>1</sup> Ray alleges that Appellees, correctional officers and prison officials at Chester County Prison, violated his constitutional rights when they forcibly transferred him to a punitive isolation cell and failed to provide him with a disciplinary hearing. Ray further alleges that the conditions of confinement in punitive isolation violated his rights as a pretrial detainee. Ray seeks both damages and injunctive relief.

Throughout the discovery period, the parties filed various motions to compel discovery, for a protective order, and for permission to take depositions, which the District Court resolved in an order entered September 13, 2004. Appellees then moved for summary judgment, attaching prison records and Ray's deposition in support of their argument that there were no issues of material fact because the allegations in Ray's complaint were unsupported by any evidence. Ray filed a motion for a thirty day enlargement of time in which to respond, which the District Court granted, thereby extending the response deadline to November 8, 2004. Ray did not file a response to the summary judgment motion. In an order entered November 30, 2004, the District Court granted summary judgment in favor of Appellees, after concluding that there was no evidence in the record that Appellees had failed to follow proper procedures in removing <sup>1</sup>As the parties are familiar with the facts, we recite them here only as necessary to our discussion. We note that the District Court consolidated this case with two other cases brought by Ray, Ray v. Walker, Civ. No. 03-3093, and Ray v. Brooks, Civ. No. 03-1050.

Ray from his cell and transporting him to an isolation cell. The District Court also held that there was no evidence to support Ray's conditions of confinement claim. On the same day that the District Court issued its summary judgment order, Ray filed a motion pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(f) for a continuance in order to conduct further discovery. The District Court denied this motion as moot on December 7, 2004. Ray appeals from the District Court's order granting summary judgment.

The District Court had jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1343. We have appellate jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1291. We review the district court's grant of summary judgment de novo, viewing the underlying facts and all reasonable inferences therefrom in the light most favorable to the party opposing the motion. Pennsylvania Coal Ass'n v. Babbitt, 63 F.3d 231, 235 (3d Cir. 1995). Summary judgment is appropriately granted where there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). A party opposing a summary judgment motion cannot rest upon the "mere allegations or denials of the adverse party's pleading" but must respond with affidavits or depositions setting forth "specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e). As the District Court noted, Appellees supported their summary judgment motion with prison records and Ray's deposition. Ray was allowed discovery, yet filed no response to the summary judgment motion. On the record before the District Court, Appellees were entitled to judgment as a matter of law. We find no abuse of discretion in the District Court's denial of Ray's discovery motion. See In re Fine Paper Antitrust Litigation, 685 F.2d 810, 817-18 (3d Cir. 1982).

We recognize that Ray filed a motion for a continuance under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(f), asserting a need for further discovery. Ray's motion was received by the Clerk of the District Court on November 29, 2004, the same day that the District Court issued its summary judgment order and twenty-one days after the thirty day extension of time had expired.<sup>2</sup> While there is no fixed time limit for filing a Rule 56(f) motion, under these circumstances, Ray's motion was not filed within a reasonable time, and the District Court had no reason to defer acting on Appellees' motion.<sup>3</sup> See Resolution Trust Corp. v. North Bridge Assocs., Inc., 22 F.3d 1198, 1204 (1st Cir. 1994); see also Ashton-Tate Corp. v. Ross, 916 F.2d 516, 520 (9th Cir. 1990).

For the foregoing reasons, we will affirm the order of the District Court granting summary judgment to Appellees.

<sup>2</sup>We do not review the order denying the Rule 56(f) motion, as it was not appealed. See Union Pacific Railroad Company v. Greentree Transp. Trucking Co., 293 F.3d 120, 125-26 (3d Cir. 2002).

<sup>3</sup>It does not appear from the record that the District Judge had Ray's Rule 56(f) motion before him when he was deciding the Defendants' summary judgment motion.
